

Dear Parent/Guardian,

To Kill a Mockingbird by Harper Lee, takes place in the fictitious town of Maycomb, Alabama. Scout Finch lives with her brother Jem and their widower father Atticus. The siblings instinctively understand the complexities of their socially divided town. Atticus is a lawyer who takes on a racially charged case that divides him and his family from their community.

Essential Questions:

How do Scout, Jem, and Dill characterize Boo Radley at the beginning of the book? In what way did Boo's past history of violence foreshadow his method of protecting Jem and Scout from Bob Ewell? Does this repetition of aggression make him more or less of a sympathetic character?

In Scout's account of her childhood, her father Atticus reigns supreme. How would you characterize his abilities as a single parent? How would you typify his views on race and class in the larger context of his community and his peers?
